

Katrina Memorial Opens

by Staff

Katrina Memorial
Biloxi,MS

The Katrina Memorial to hurricane victims was unveiled at a candle light vigil at Biloxi's Town Green on Highway 90.

Watch Preston Sharp's opening comments (Video) or watch Paul DiMeo answer "Why are you doing this?" (Video)

See more detailed photos of the Memorial on our attractions page (here)

Constructed by the "Extreme Makeover Home Edition" teamed up with local officials to create the memorial.

GCIS Note:(The first in a series of four one-hour specials, "Extreme Makeover: Home Edition -- After the Storm, Mississippi" airs THURSDAY, MARCH 23 (8:00-9:00 p.m. ET) on the ABC Television Network.) Standing 12 feet tall, about the height of the storm surge from hurricane Katrina at the Town Green. The Memorial has a colorful tile inlay of a wave, and a glass enclosed case with numerous items. Also announced at the unveiling was that once the list of victims is officially complete, their names will be engraved on the memorial.

A large crowd listened to the speaker Preston Sharp as he read a list of over 50 victims names.

In stark contrast to the Memorial new look was the damaged buildings and piles of debris surrounding on all sides. The vacant damaged Santa Del Maria complex to the East, and the Hard Rock Casino to the south.

Workers from Extreme Makeover watch the ceremony.

A view inside the memorials enclosure.

Several media representatives such as WLOX was on hand to film the event.

Videos associated with this article:

Preston delivers opening ceremony comments (6 Minutes)

Paul signs autographs and answers the question "Why are you doing this?" (5 min)

